Progress on inclusive data priorities

No	Question	Guidance	Champion response
1.1	What progress have you made on your Inclusive data priorities/ IDC Action Plan priorities in the past year?	Include examples to accompany any highlights or achievements.	1. Ensure our data and our allies' data is rendered more inclusive of women and their intersectionalities. We've had a few conversations with local and regional actors to show the importance of collecting disaggregated data. This has been particularly relevant in the topic of financial inclusion and carework. One was done with the Financial Inclusion Working group which we created and currently lead, and in the other document we present 11 recommendations for the local government around the following three topics: i) entrepreneurship, specifically those in vulnerable contexts, ii) gender, which includes identifying the

			dynamics of care and paid work, gender-based violence, leadership and political and/or community participation of women, iii) financial education and inclusion, which includes access to non-financial services. We also began a new research project about care work in the Pacific with USAID and OEM. We aim to understand and characterize the supply and demand of care work (private, public and community) in the Pacific region of Colombia to generate strategies that contribute to its recognition and redistribution. We should have the results by September next year. <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Also, we received the highest number of applications to our research fund this year. We are going to finance 20 new research projects• all of them include a gender perspective in their design and analysis, as well as participatory approaches to data collection, and we are of course encouraging researchers to collect disaggregated data. 1. Work in partnership with other organizations and experts to promote the use of Fundación WWB Colombia disaggregated data. This year has been quite good at creating partnerships with other organizations at a local and national level. And we have also co-organised a few events (on a local level) with partners where we've been able to talk about the importance of disaggregated data, including gender and ethnic racial belonging. Also, we have done two "Data Breakfasts" where we invite local and regional actors (including academia and

			government) to share some of our data and promote its use. We also co-organized an event with Dane, about Citizen generated data. 2. Publish reports, documents and other audiovisual content using disaggregated data to raise awareness of its importance with other organizations and decision makers. In terms of raising awareness, this year together with our communication department, we have created more content for the general public, especially through social media and local and national media, including press and short capsules (videos). We have also focused on achieving greater internal use of the data (with our own collaborators) and with our Board of Directors. And in terms of decision makers, we have written 2 policy memos for local government, and hope to release another one in the next month about the informal economy and recommendations for addressing this issue, which is increasingly growing in the country and represents an important sector that supports hundreds of households.
