The Global Partnership for Sustainable Development Data (the Global Partnership) is seeking one or more consultants with considerable experience with English to French and/or English to Spanish translation to assist the Global Partnership with translations of a variety of documents. The Global Partnership invites qualified individuals, firms, and organizations (“Offerors”) to submit a proposal for the requested services. Offerors are encouraged to read this RFP in its entirety, paying specific attention to the scope of services, instructions, and requirements. The agreement resulting from this RFP will be provided to the most responsive Offeror whose offer will be the most advantageous to the Global Partnership/UNF in terms of cost, functionality, and other factors as specified in this RFP.

The Global Partnership is an equal opportunity employer. We celebrate diversity and are committed to creating an inclusive environment for all employees and consultants.

Section 2: Scope of services

2.1 Definitions

Translation is defined as the communication of the meaning of a source-language text by means of an equivalent target-language text. The Global Partnership assumes that the translated text is quality-controlled and final, meaning that it has been reviewed and edited to meet the Global Partnership expectations of accurate translation (concordance with the original language version).

Editing does not involve translation. It is work carried out on a single language-version text to correct grammar, syntax and style, which is also understood to comprise logic and completeness. Editing is meant to improve the flow and overall quality of the writing, without changing the intended message, doing away with wordiness and removing any ambiguity.

Proofreading is defined as comparing an edited laid-out document (final draft) with the source document to ensure all text has been transferred from the source, correcting typographical errors and format inconsistencies as well as accuracy of any cross references, and ensuring the correct location of graphics, tables, headers, footers, page numbers, page breaks, etc. Proofreading may also include the translation of corrections and editions made to a document in one language into the translated version of the same document.

Urgent translation service is defined two ways: a) translation of a small job (an occasional document of up to 500 words) that needs to be delivered within 1 business day; and b) larger jobs that need to be delivered as quickly as they can be done.

In some urgent cases, it is possible that there might not be enough time for the successful Offeror to submit the job through its regular quality assurance process. In those cases, the successful Offeror shall advise the Global Partnership when acknowledging the request.

Urgent editing or proofreading service is defined in a similar way as urgent translation service.

Regular translation service is defined as translation that can easily be accomplished by a mutually agreed upon date, considering accepted standards of translation productivity and assuming that only one translator will work on the job.

Word count is defined as a continuous series of characters of the translated text. The word count will be done electronically using the same software in which the text was provided. Should that software not have a word count function, the Global Partnership will copy and paste the text into MS Word to count the number of words.
2.2 Types ofDocuments
The Global Partnership will require translation service for a broad range of documents including, but not limited to, reports, financial documents, proposals, project abstracts, policies, procedures, general letters, memos, briefings, website content, social media and public communications. Certain documents will contain specialized terminology commonly used in the data and international development communities of which the Global Partnership is a part. There may also be legal, financial and audit documents that also use specialized terminology.

If an Offeror is able to provide translation/editing/proofreading services in additional languages, this should be noted in the Offeror’s proposal.
It is expected that the successful Offeror consults with the Global Partnership prior to translation projects to discuss terminology and purpose, to ensure the translation has the same meaning and tone as the original document. These consultations will be brief and will be held more frequently during the first year of the contract. The product returned to the Global Partnership must be in its final form and be fully reviewed for quality control.

Whenever possible, the Global Partnership requires the successful Offeror to use the same employee translators to handle all Global Partnership assignments in order to develop a sound knowledge of the Global Partnership’s “language” and style.

This RFP and any replies to any written notifications are transmitted to the Offeror solely for the purposes of the Offeror preparing and submitting a Proposal. Each Offeror shall keep the RFP and its contents confidential.
